DETAILED ACTION

Priority

1. Receipt is acknowledged of papers submitted under 35 U.S.C. 119(a)-(d), which papers have been placed of record in the file.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 102

2. The following is a quotation of the appropriate paragraphs of 35 U.S.C. 102 that form the basis for the rejections under this section made in this Office action:

A person shall be entitled to a patent unless -

- (b) the invention was patented or described in a printed publication in this or a foreign country or in public use or on sale in this country, more than one year prior to the date of application for patent in the United States.
- 3. Claims 1-6 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 102(b) as being anticipated by Okuda et al (EPO 0589830 A2).

Regarding Claim 1, Okuda et al teaches a display device for a loom (Fig.1), comprising: a display unit provided with a touch screen (element 2 in fig.1); a display command unit capable of making said display unit display at least one of operation control buttons on said touch screen (Figures 1-4; Page 3, line 1- Page 4, line 56); and a button condition command unit capable of making at least one of operation control buttons to be interlocked, either one of in the non-displaying state or in the ineffective state according to a stopping state of the loom. (Figures 1-4; Page 3, line 1- Page 4, line 56).

Regarding Claim 2, Okuda et al teaches a display device further comprising an operation command unit that makes an operation button included in the operation control buttons effective only when the operation button is pressed so as to meet a specific condition; wherein the operation control buttons include at least one the operation button and at least one permission button, the operation button is effective only when the operation button and the permission button are pressed simultaneously, and at least the operation control button to be interlocked is either the operation button or the permission button. (Figures 1-4; Page 3, line 1- Page 4, line 56).

Regarding Claim 3, Okuda et al teaches a display device wherein the operation control buttons include at least one operation button, and the operation control button to be interlocked is the operation button. (Figure 1; Page 3, line 1-56).

Regarding Claim 4, Okuda et al teaches a display device further comprising an operation command unit that makes an operation button included in the operation control buttons effective only when the operation button is pressed so as to meet a specific condition; wherein the operation control buttons further include one permission button, the operation button is effective when operation button and the permission button are pressed simultaneously, and the operation control button to be interlocked is the permission button. (Figures 1-4; Page 3, line 1- Page 4, line 56).

Regarding Claim 5, Okuda et al teaches a display device further comprising an operation command unit that makes the operation button effective when the operation button is pressed so as to meet a specific condition; wherein the operation control buttons further include a plurality of permission buttons, the operation button is effective when the operation button and the permission button are pressed simultaneously, and the operation control button to be interlocked is the permission button. (Figures 1-4; Page 3, line 1- Page 4, line 56).

Regarding Claim 6, Okuda et al teaches a display device further comprising an OR command unit that makes at least one of the operation control buttons in non-display state or ineffective state depending on OR of stopping states when a plurality of the stopping states occur simultaneously. (Figures 1-4; Page 3, line 1- Page 4, line 56).
